Two Butchers Had a Door Battle

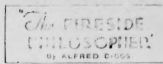

The story goes that two Liverpool butchers were competitors. "Sausages, one shilling the pound," was the announcement in the window of the first shop.

"Sausages, ten pence the pound," was the answer over the door of the other shop next day.

"Sausages under one shilling cannot be guaranteed," was the comeback of shop number one.

"We furnish sausages for the king," was the next announcement on shop number two.

Sleep number one, not to be out-clashed by such methods and to settle the argument, put out the following sign the next morning: "God save the King!"

Maintenance of Cattle

With haying and harvesting practically completed, farmers and ranchers will now be taking stock of the feed supplies on hand and deciding how many cattle they can safely winter.

Investigations during past winter show that when no grazing is available it requires eight to ten pounds of hay per day to maintain a calf in thrifty condition. On this basis, approximately one-half a ton of hay is necessary to winter a calf for a feeding period of 110 to 125 days. Similarly, a yearling requires twelve to fourteen pounds or approximately three-quarters of a ton for the same period. Cows need sixteen to eighteen pounds per day for 120 days which amounts to about one ton per head.

If grass is available the hay requirements can be reduced accordingly. Calves have been wintered at the above station on 500-600 pounds of hay when they had access to a limited amount of grass at the rate of three acres per head.

These requirements are based on good quality hay. If poor hay is used the amount fed will have to be increased accordingly. Also, cattle going into the winter in poor condition will require more consideration than cattle that enter the winter fat.

A dependable supply of water is just as important as feed when cattle are wintering on a straight hay feeding ration. They should have water at least once a day, and if it can be warmed is even more so much the better.

On the above basis it is a simple matter to estimate the number of cattle that can be safely wintered on a certain amount of hay. If a stockman goes into the winter knowing he has feed enough to maintain all his cattle for 120 days if necessary, he is saving a great deal of worry.

Further letters will discuss the relative values of our common feeds the use of substitutes and concentrates. Any questions regarding winter feeding will receive prompt attention if sent to the above station.
